Research In Computational Molecular Biology

Research in Computational Molecular Biology (RECOMB) is an annual academic conference on the subjects of bioinformatics and computational biology. The conference has been held every year since 1997 and is a major international conference in computational biology, alongside the ISMB and ECCB conferences.

Research in Computational Molecular Biology - Wikipedia

Computational molecular biology. Collaboration between the nanotechnology group and computational molecular biologists at Ames has just begun. The biologists have been studying hypothetical molecular mechanisms that may have existed in early proto-cells. This is part of investigations into the origin of life.

The University of Wyoming is proud to offer summer research opportunities to external undergraduate students to engage in research in bioinformatics and computational molecular biology in Laramie. The summer research program will last from May 23, 2011 to August 5, 2011 and will include a stipend of $3500 for the period.
